Update on Revised EPFO Wage Ceiling

An update about your Provident Fund

The Government has increased the monthly PF wage limit from ₹15,000 to ₹25,000. This change takes effect from 17 September 2026.

EPFO shared more details on 24 September. Because the change begins during the month, September PF will use both the old and new limits.

Here is a simple explanation of the change and what you may see on your payslip.

How September PF will be worked out

1 to 16 September

₹15,000

17 to 30 September

₹25,000

September limit for the full month: about ₹19,667

From October, the monthly limit will be ₹25,000. Your PF amount also depends on the wages used for your PF calculation.

What could go into your PF this September?

Monthly PF wages	Earlier PF	September PF	October PF
₹20,000	₹1,800	₹2,080	₹2,400
₹21,000	₹1,800	₹2,136	₹2,520
₹25,000 or more	₹1,800	₹2,360	₹3,000

Examples use 12% employee PF contribution. Your actual figure depends on the wages counted for PF.

What this means for you

September 2026

PF will use the old limit for 1 to 16 September and the new limit for 17 to 30 September. This means more money may go into your PF account.

From October 2026

The monthly PF wage limit will be ₹25,000. At that limit, the employee EPF contribution & the employer EPF contribution will move to ₹3,000 per month from ₹1,800.

The extra contribution goes into your PF savings. You can check your revised PF contribution of Sep'26 month in your passbook once available in the PF portal.

Thank You

We hope this helps you understand the change to your PF contribution.
